“ My condolences to the family. It saddened me to hear Alonzo had passed. He was a good person. He loved people and he knew how to put a smile on your face. He would make you laugh whenever he saw you. He will be missed.

“ Wow words cannot express how we have been feeling since you took your last breath!! You're the one and only one that could call my husband by his nickname without me saying anything! Pcon you called him , 48 years of true friendship is one reason I couldn't say anything! From day one I saw the bond and knew it was very rare one of a kind, and I definitely respected that and grew to love you as a brother and friend. No matter what you we're always there. Your legacy lives on. Bum Bum you will never be forgotten. Even living beside you finally watching the two you work that landlord 😂👉! So many plan cookouts , but this I know ABBA timing is never wrong! Rest well my friend! We will see you in glory! Your friend and sister , Yvonnya Peoples.

“ Zo,
Our family here at Mallard has been broken. I knew, I was going to get that one last response to my text or phone call saying "Baby I got. I'm going there right now" . We've only known each other for 3 months but it seemed like forever. You were the man and will always be remembered and truly be missed. I rarely find someone who eats black jelly beans like me 😭
To the family you have our most sincere condolences, if you need ANYTHING we are here for you.
Rest on Zo.

Love Max,

It was a joy to see Alonzo every Saturday morning at the barbershop. He always arrived there well before his 8 am appointment to make sure he had his coffee. He didn't realize that we were cousins until I started asking him about Aunt Naomi Ward's kids. He introduced us to his sons, and it was a blessing to minister to them both. To his wife, children, sisters and cousins who were like his siblings, please know that we are heartbroken and grieve Alonzo's loss with you. May his legacy of love continue to comfort you all at this time.
