To my childhood friend. From summer school to us sitting outside in my car talking about Rod Wave. When I spoke to you, I always made sure you tell Mama Hazel I said Hello. I can't believe we are here writing our memories to you. Football season won't ever be the same, especially when my Green Bay goes against the Steelers again. I won't be able to listen to you call my name twice or me yelling yours right back. Thank you for fighting for this messed up country! We love you and we'll definitely miss you! 🍷🍷🥺🥺 Mama Hazel thank you for raising such a gentleman and always texting to make sure he was good no matter what! 🍷🍷🍷

I am Yolanda Cassell who could never imagine my son Aj . Would die before me that day will always stay in my mind . As a mother you are so helpless. Because it's nothing you can do but watch your child die in front of you. You can't hold you can't touch them . My heart just breaks everyday hoping I am dreaming. I lost my only son but I lost my best friend. having him and just being blessed to have a child meant everything to me .He was born from love but I was so grateful to see my son born for the first time I saw him I was in love . With Aj this handsome baby brought me so much joy and happiness in my life. This young child made me feel complete and made me take life seriously . Aj as a baby was so sweet and never cried all the time but we spoiled him. But I wouldn't change anything about my life I knew at a young child how much he loved music and love to sing . He was always dancing and just joking around and as he was growing up it never changed. AJ was so given to people at a young age he loved to see everyone happy. He always had people that would love to be around him because they always said he's quiet . And then he was shocked them and started dancing, saying and just joking around being crazy. Then even when went away to join the US Army he always made his own choices and decisions and we were proud because we knew what he wanted out of life. Even as he got older life wasn't easy he had downfalls he had good days. He had bad things, but threw it all. He realized that God got me no matter what as he always has.. Even as a grown man, he always had friends that would meet him and feel like they've known him forever. He was never lacking.. He has so many people who loved him and they loved him truthfully for who he was. He never tried to put another person down or heard anybody out there that would hurt you for no reason, but I can't let it get down.. when he came back to Virginia, he was lost, but eventually he found his way back to where he needed to be and he became one with God and the love of his father because he knew that's what got him through his rough in his life, but what hurts the most, there is he knows what he wants out of his life someone else's actions and he watches a friend that he has always been around walk away from him. He was nothing. . my definition of a friend is someone that is your brother your sister you're there for them no matter what they're there for you no matter what they would do anything to help you. They will love you except you for you as you will for them y'all secrets and bond stay together Because it's not your friend, your brother, your sister . What is a mother I know what he meant to me so I know what he meant to the world if I only could take that day back I will give anything to take back, but I look at pictures and I see the smile and it hurts to look at them, but it hurts not to look at them This was a young man and his offer was ready to give anything to the world would give his last to anybody and if he did something it was nobody's business. He did it for them so no one had to know you said that we can figure out that he never looked down on anybody because he knew what it was there to have nothing to grow to have something.

He knew what it was like to be broken to be fixed and love that beauty that grow inside him , that's the reflection of him handsome young man joy to life and anybody that was around him. They loved him because they said he could jump a clown around. If they were sad he would make them happy. They love to be around. They love to go places with them they embrace them for who he was. . True friends don't try to change you. They try to accept you. They try to let you be who you are and grow into who you are because that's all they asked in return is for you to accept them and love them unconditional his life he has loving people and friends he met along the way, his brother and his sister the end of his life when it was ended and taken, I went to his at those last moment I know I was loved. I know that God was willing to accept me. I never thought it would be, but you had a purpose for me on earth and now you have heaven for me . I'm here. My job is still not done because they're a battles that guy has to fight for me. He's not putting that burden on my family. He has this, but I'm looking down to make sure and touch the ground as well. My spirit my soul, my family dearly to me because I know, what they meant to me and I meant to them . Nothing AJ nothing can change anything. No one can ever be you. You can never be replaced. You were that young man from day one it was designed for me was the gift beyond your life could never be a price on it because you was the gift of life for me, the love I have for you, my son it will never change. Yes, my heart is broken and to pieces, but just to know that you were with us at once and just know that your energy is all around me and every step that take . I know that you'll be taking it with me because as I walk, I walk with my father as I sleep I sleep with my father as I talk. I talk to my God above as I pray, listening to my prayers he's with me all day so knowing that you were with him, it makes my heart a little my love for you. It's just unconditional. My heart is torn, but it's so many special things that you brought to us so amazing, loving, generous, unique, and your own way. . I love the fact that you were never materialistic. You had your own way addressing your own style and all you had to do was give a smile and you were just melt somebody's heart couldn't even stay mad at you and then you turn around and you do some crazy And how much you love me those are the moments that we missed the most you brought so much love to the family . Today you're not here with us and I count every day that you have not been with us but the one thing that I count the most is the day that God will let you be at peace because it will not be judgment day for you. it will be judgment day for the ones who have hurt you, the ones that took your life . But that will be today that the Son with Shawn no rain just pure peace not for us but for you because you're worth it you deserve it. You stayed home before and it's amazing you pick that name because that's who defined you more than anything. just know you love to be around you and know how you was when you couldn't always spread it, that was that people threw it. The power of knowledge will never be forgotten because that's something you always had is wisdom and you were young man. That was here before your time. We will see you again, my love. . Rest in peace my son fly like the dogs and draw your wings and spread them like the angel. We love you. We miss you and we will always cherish with all our hearts
