“ *To Ken, his wife, and their 3 sons,
Ken came home from school one day, with an assignment that was troubling him. We sat down to talk and after some time he finally turned to me and asked, "mom, what do YOU want to be when you grow up?" All I could do was laugh. I thought, what a charming child you are honey.*

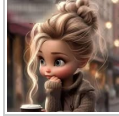

When Ken graduated from high school, after several setbacks and working hard to achieve it, his entire class gave him a standing ovation. We were so very proud of you. You never gave up, you just kept at it until you succeeded.

And the night you came to the hospital where I worked, at about 3 A.M._ to say good-bye, as you were leaving for the navy that morning. After you left, all the other RN's came running over, asking who was that tall good looking man!

You were a charming child, a teenager that kept at it until you succeeded, and a tall, good-looking you man. I love you so, then and now. You're in the hands of God now, at peace, but yet still here in hearts and minds of all those, like me, who love you.

*Love and Kisses,
Your mother, Nancy and Henry*
