“ My Uncle Brink was a wonderful man. He was my father's first cousin. When his parents died when he was about 11, he came to live with my father's family so they grew up like brothers. My dad would have been about 8 at the time. He was such a sweet family man who supported his family in so many ways. He was dependable and caring and we will all miss him very much.

“ The memories sheared by a grandson about his grandfather I read here were perfect, could not have been better. I am not into the new talk time given family and friends at funerals today, but if one has to talk and remember this is a perfect example of a good memory. It is the kind of memory ancestry dot com encourages members to record. It is solid.

“ It's probably a little off topic but the greatest memory of grandad for me had to be watching wrestling on the weekends. As a child I remember him putting me in the chair in the kitchen and just talking to me about all the crazy things that went on in the world. At times I was too young to understand all his visions but 19 years later I have a understanding of life. Even with military service he first hand guided me and told me stories about different missions and all the traveling he did. When I look at my daughter I see my grandfather. I see my father, all of my aunties and cousins. I'm happy and I know he is in a better place. God is everywhere and even at his age it was the faith of God that kept him fighting. Not too long ago I was on the phone and my mother told me "you know your grandad is driving, he was going to church". By far a man to admire. I love you and may we meet again at the gates of heaven
