“ grandpa ik you look down on us everyday but it does not change the fact ur not here anymore,its hard because i cant see you anymore but that dont change that i love u and always think of you,i would do or give anything to have you back but ur flying with god now and i hope your loving it up in heaven,it breaks my heart when i hear your songs because it reminds me of the fact that you are gone now and there is no coming back.i miss you so much like the day you passed i wanted to just shake you and say wake up but i couldnt because i knew you where not in pain anymore but im just glad that your not suffering or hurting anymore and god is lucky to have you as his angle.

“ I knew Ricki many years ago he was my husband Robert's friend from childhood. Robert thought the world of him and I am sure they are together celebrating with Jesus Ricki's home coming. Jesus saying to them job well done my fine and faithful servants! Welcome home Ricki! Amen

“ As a Uncle and your sister-in-law, we can't express our love for your Dad. It's always been love but in the last six to eight months, it's been deeper than ever before. The affect he had on our lives has always been courageous and trusting but lately his cries for help couldn't have been more vivid and we would have done anything we could to save him from any misery or discomfort he had. He always told us how much he loved us and used the phrases "baby girl" and my big brother which always meant the world to us. His children and grandchildren loved him so much and it was obvious at every turn. We will never forget every phone call or every minute we spent with him. We hope and pray he's at peace with himself and with God.

Our dad was the most strongest and kind hearted manyou would ever meet we loved him so deeply and as deeply saddened as we are it's comforting to know that all his pain and suffering is over and that he is nestled in God's arms. We will never forget what a GREAT man he was

Ricky was my true lifelong friend. In 55 years of friendship, any time I ever called on him he was always there. Words can't express how much his smile and kindness will be missed. Love you Ricky. Dwight.
