“ The Lord called home my uncle/2nd dad. This pain is the worst. He was THE uncle that a niece and nephew needed in life. He loved us equally and showed us so much love. He was that uncle that stepped in when we needed him and he knew it before we would ask. My uncle was my provider, my supporter, my counselor and my security. I can't find the words to express what I want to say because my heart hurts so bad. Thank you Unc for being such a great role model of how a uncle should come through for his family. I love you Mr. Cowboy!!

“ " Roy it is very hard for me to say good-bye to you. Debbie feels the same way. Her putting up those pickles will never be the same. She would always start out these are Roy's. You were and still are my best friend and you will always have a place in my heart. In all the time I have known you I can't remember us ever having a bad word to say to each other. You were there for my wife and me when I was in the hospital and because of the virus I couldn't be there for you. I did and I thank GOD, got to talk to you before HE called you home. Roy I will not say bye I will just say see you later my friend my brother."

“ Roy you must have know what day you wanted to leave this earth, you made sure it was Black History Month. You made history in everthing that you did. I always label you as my other sister. Oh let me let yah know right now I can't spell. Now getting back. You knew all the gossip that was going on in the family. You voice you oppion, but you never took sides. You got all of us addict to those pickles that you gave us. I don't know what we are going to do now. Yah know I talk a lot so you might want to read what I post and then take a break and come back to read more. Roy loved to eat out. He was the one that started our birthday lunchon, but covid stop that. He has taken me to breakfast at places I never been to. I can call him anytime and say let's do breakfast. I remember the time we were down Nell house and he slept on the air mattress that i pump up, but I forgot to close the plug and all the air came out by the time he wroke up. I'm so sorry that we didn't make that ride to Nell house. Well i'm not going to worry about what you are going to be doing in heaven, because you are bring a bag of ice, soda, water, and your stand up comic hour. Enjoy you journey Mr. Cowboy!

“ I can't believe your gone Uncle Roy. I can remember so many memories, but my favorite is every year during football season we be battling over Redskins vs. Cowboys. When Sunday hit you wear your jerseys and I wear mines. You, me, Marshall and brother Jimmy be just laughing it up bout our teams. Your smile just bring do much joy. I walk in church you right there with a smile. Every Christmas you hand me and the kids goodie bags and my favorite a box of mixed candy. You are our rock,our pillar, the one who was there when in need. Christ was definitely seen through you. We love and miss you uncle Roy. Gone but never forgotten. LONG LIVE UNCLE ROY 🥺💔

“ Man I can't believe that you are gone. I will always love and cherish the friendship we had for over 44 years, because it feels like I have lost my blood brother. I am thankful for how you never let me forget that Jesus Christ loves me and he cares. I know that my son Damari will be sad and will have so many questions about your trip to heaven. I will continue to take him to "his church" where Bishop Burrell , you and the entire congregation welcomed him with open arms to be free to express himself. You were my best friend and and I miss you man!!!
