“ I'd only known Sam a few short years but we developed a good friendship. He would always brighten my day with a silly good morning text and we'd get together every few months to catch up. Sam never once complained about the hand life had dealt him. He took it all in stride with a smile on his face and was grateful for every day. He spoke often of his daughter and loved his grandson to pieces. We bought our bikes together with the plan to go riding. Sorry that never happened but we will take that ride together one day, my friend. My condolences to his family although I apologize they are late in coming. I'd been trying to reach Sam since late February and only found out yesterday he had passed. My world is a little less brighter knowing my friend isn't in it. I'll miss you, my dear friend.
