Tribute Wall

VH

“ Our Walter was precious from birth. His life is a tribute to how an individual should live. He was free from hate, never met a person he did not like, never carried a grudge or allowed ignorance from others hurting him. Walter Jr. and I grew up together. When I and my brothers were old enough to drive we would pick Walter Jr. up from the Virginia State School for the blind. It was not unusual for us to see Walter escorting his blind friends across Shell Road to the 7-11 to get treats. We always included Walter in our lives and never hide him away or allowed others to mistreat him.

Walter Jr. rose above the daily mundane routines and expectations that the world expects of the blind. He had many friends and a social life that would match any celebrity. As a child and an adult his health issues were just another thing to him. Nothing to deter him from living a full life.

Love and Peace Walter,

Aunt Fran

“ I remember in August Lil Walter and I danced at his friends and family day. And we had a good time. And when it was time to leave I walked him to the van. And I waited with him until he got on bus. And I cried I had a good time with my brother. And I know how to do his dance I love my brother my heart is ripped in pieces.
